

You have the right to receive a “Good Faith Estimate” explaining how much your medical care will cost

Under the No Surprises Act, health care providers are required to give individuals who do not have insurance or who are not using insurance an estimate (“Good Faith Estimate”) of the bill for medical items and services.

- You have the right to receive a Good Faith Estimate for the total expected cost of any non-emergency items or services. This includes related costs like medical tests, prescription drugs, equipment, and hospital fees.
- As an uninsured or self-pay individual, your health care provider is required to give you a Good Faith Estimate in writing as follows:
 - When a primary item or service is scheduled at least 3 business days before the date the medical item or service is scheduled to be furnished – a Good Faith Estimate should be provided to you no later than 1 business day after the date of scheduling;
 - When a primary item or service is scheduled at least 10 business days before such medical item or service is scheduled to be furnished – a Good Faith Estimate should be provided to you no later than 3 business days after the date of scheduling; or
 - When a good faith estimate is requested by you as an uninsured or self-pay individual – a Good Faith Estimate should be provided to you no later than 3 business days after the date of your request.
- As an uninsured or self-pay patient, if you receive a bill that is at least $400 more than your Good Faith Estimate, you may be eligible to dispute the bill through the Patient-Provider Dispute Resolution Process.
- Make sure to save a copy or picture of your Good Faith Estimate.
